Leading the design of a large-scale warehouse management system, with a focus on creating intuitive interfaces tailored to complex logistical needs. Collaborating with cross-functional teams to refine the platform based on user feedback and operational requirements.

My background in industrial design brings a unique perspective to digital product development — especially in sectors like logistics and engineering — where understanding physical workflows and technical constraints is key to crafting effective user experiences.

Previously led the UI/UX design for a B2B platform, delivering a scalable and user-friendly solution aligned with client needs.
